Demandes de protection internationale liées au genre : une bibliographie

Le NANSEN TOOL est un outil thématique destiné aux praticien·enne·s du droit et aux avocat·e·s qui assistent les demandeur·euse·s de protection internationale. Il met à disposition des ressources pratiques et directement utilisables pour les professionnels du droit et plus largement toutes les personnes intéressées par le sujet abordé

Une initiative pour rapprocher la recherche académique et le terrain

Pour soutenir l'action et la réflexion de tous les acteur·rice·s de la procédure de protection internationale, NANSEN propose ici une nouvelle contribution à la cartographie du besoin de protection internationale en raison de craintes de persécution liée au genre. Ce NANSEN Tool s'inscrit aussi dans le cadre des initiatives prises par NANSEN pour développer une approche interdisciplinaire de l'asile et dans la mise en place de nouvelles dynamiques pour alimenter la recherche académique portant sur la protection internationale et la rapprocher du terrain.

Bibliographie: demandes de protection internationales liées au violences de genre

INTRO | Cette bibliographie est basée sur une recherche documentaire approfondie et est destinée aux professionnel·les du droit tout au long de la procédure d'asile. Elle rassemble des ressources spécifiques, potentiellement utiles pour étayer le raisonnement juridique dans les procédures d'asile liées au genre. Elle complète les ressources mentionnées dans le Guide Pratique « Procédures de Protection Internationale Liées au Genre : Violences sexuelles ou basées sur le genre, orientation sexuelle et identité de genre » de l'Université de Gand.

STRUCTURE | Vous trouverez ici une table des matières, la bibliographie elle-même, une section « bases de données utiles et liens » et une liste alphabétique des ressources (à la fin). La bibliographie contient trois grandes parties présentant des sources relatives :

- I) au cadre juridique et politique pertinent au niveau belge (lois nationales, documents de politique... ), au niveau européen (directives de l'UE, conventions et directives du Conseil de l'Europe... ) et au niveau des Nations Unies (recommandations, lignes directrices et manuels généraux des traités et des organes des Nations Unies...)
- II) au genre et à la protection internationale en général, mais aussi une sélection de sujets → Les sources de la section II) sont classées par argument utilisé par les instances de l'asile dans les procédures de protection internationales fondées sur les VSBG. Une brève présentation de chacun de ces arguments est également fournie.

- III) aux formes spécifiques des VSBG concernant la procédure d'asile (violence sexuelle, mutilation/mutilation génitale féminine, exploitation sexuelle (et) domestique, violence forcée et violence liée aux normes d'honneur et de genre), en ce compris une section spécifique sur les survivant·es/victimes masculins de VSS

Les sources sont présentées sous forme de tableaux qui donnent au lecteur un numéro (1ère colonne), la référence bibliographique (2ème colonne) et les mots clés indiquant le contenu du texte (3ème colonne).

LIMITATIONS | Cette bibliographie comprend principalement des documents juridiques et politiques, des articles/livres/chapitres académiques et des rapports d'organisations internationales. Bien que qu'on y trouve un certain nombre de références jurisprudentielles, une analyse jurisprudentielle substantielle dépasse la portée de cette liste de sources. Il en va de même pour la littérature sur les demandes d'asile liées à l'orientation sexuelle et/ou à l'identité de genre car cette question complexe en soi justifierait une autre bibliographie à part entière.

REFERENCEMENT | Les références ont été rédigées selon les règles de référence OSCOLA. Elles indiquent des pages/paragraphes spécifiques lorsque le document n'est pas pertinent dans son intégralité. Si l'ensemble du document est pertinent, la référence ne contient aucune autre spécification de l'emplacement. Lorsqu'une source apparaît pour la deuxième fois dans la liste, elle est affichée de manière abrégée (et peut être retracée dans la liste alphabétique des ressources). La structure et les informations contenues dans les références OSCOLA peuvent être consultées via le lien suivant<sup>14</sup>.

2. Gender & asylum: selected topics

2.1. Gender in relation to the UN Refugee Convention grounds

This section lists literature on the link between sexual and gender-based persecution and the 'Convention grounds' in the 1951 UN Refugee Convention. While some advocate for including 'gender' as a convention ground as such, others emphasise that the almost exclusive use of 'particular social group' in SGBV-related asylum procedures ignores the complexity of SGBV experiences and excludes these from the socio-political contexts in which they prevail.

2.2. Credibility assessment

2.2.1. Credibility assessment: in general

This sections highlights barriers for SGBV survivors/victims to narrate a flight story that is perceived as credible in the asylum procedure. Such barriers may relate to trauma, shame, the functioning of our memory, stressful interview circumstances, the image of an ideal SGBV refugee... . The relevance of this literature is confirmed by the fact that a lack of credibility appears to be the core reason for refusals of SGBV-related asylum applications today.

2.2.2. Delayed/non-reporting in country of origin and delayed (disclosure in) asylum procedure

This section presents literature rebutting the assumption that the following situations cause suspicion towards the credibility of an applicant's flight story: 1) delayed or non-reporting of SGBV experiences in the country of origin, 2) delayed filing of an application for international protection related to SGBV in the host country, and 3) delayed disclosure of SGBV experiences in the asylum procedure in the host country. In contrast to what is often argued by asylum authorities, disclosure of SGBV must be considered as a process, instead of a one-time event and disclosure may be hampered by substantial barriers.

2.2.4. Resourcefulness of applicant

This section deals with the allusions made by asylum authorities to the belief that resourceful applicants do not need international protection against SGBV . Related arguments tend to overemphasise applicants' (perceived) resourcefulness and coping mechanisms to deal with SGBV, which overshadows the broader social and institutional structures determining their ability to deal with such persecution. This applies to both material (e.g. financial stability, social network, housing, job...) and personal/mental resources (age, gender, autonomy, assertiveness...).

2.3. Internal flight alternative

This section provides literature on the viability of the often-presented 'internal flight alternative' for survivors/victims of SGBV. Specifically, it deals with the fact that such arguments often overlook the particular difficulties faced by survivors/victims, including legal, cultural and/or social restrictions or prohibitions on travelling or living alone, problems of securing accommodation, childcare and economic survival without family or community support, and risk of harassment and exploitation, including revictimization of sexual exploitation and violence.

2.4. Public/private divide

This section includes literature rebutting the often-made assumption that forms of SGBV belong to the 'private sphere' and therefore fall outside the scope of international refugee law. This type of reasoning resonates with the thinking pattern that "if the harm is inflicted privately, then it suffices that the women find help privately as well". However, it overlooks the socio-cultural structures in which such violence is embedded and against which an individual is often powerless.

2.5. Private (male) support network

This section provides literature on the viability of the often-proposed solution to SGBV survivors/victims to seek protection with a private (often male) support network instead of international protection. In arguing this, asylum authorities for example tend to overlook the de facto protective qualities of such networks, their lack of any obligation to provide protection, and the risks for further victimisation in the newly formed power structures that such networks entail.

2.6. State protection

Asylum authorities often argue that survivors/victims of SGBV have not exhausted state protection pathways by not reporting their experiences to the authorities, without assessing the effectiveness or reasonability of such protection. In addition, they tend to argue that the existence of local laws criminalising such violence or local NGOs/shelters oriented at SGBV survivors/victims can replace state protection as such. This section provides literature rebutting these arguments and others related to the requirement of a state unwilling/unable to provide protection.

2.7. Country of origin information

This section focuses on literature pointing out that country of origin information (COI) cannot per definition be considered gender-sensitive. Next to the ‘dark number’ of SGBV occurring in the private sphere that is never reported, general country reports often are not always drafted from a gendered point of view.

2.8. Medical documentation

This section deals with medical documentation on SGBV experiences in the asylum procedure.
